Climb to top of crater too tough for spacemen

NEWSROOM NOTES— The insurance industry will face a new challenge when heart transplantation operations become as "routine" as open-heart surgery is today.

Insurance concerns would be well advised to start planning now for coverage that would help defray the high cost of surgery, postoperative care and extended care involved in heart transplants.

A report by the National Heart Institute states that major financial support for the large expenses involved in this surgery will have to come at least in part from expanded private insurance coverage.

For a variety of reasons, only about 100 heart transplant operations are being performed annually in this country, according to the Institute. The figure could rise to 22,000 with the solution of several major problems.

Less than a third of the total cost of nearly $2,000,000 for the current total is covered by insurance— Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Medicaid and private hospital policies.

Two-thirds of the expenses are being borne by the National Institutes of Health, philanthropies and the hospitals themselves. Only one per cent of the bills are being paid by the patients and their families.

In a study of heart surgery and its ramifications, the Heart Institute reported that the medical bills, excluding surgeons' fees, for 36 transplant recipients averaged $18,694. They ranged from $3,300 to $44,694, with five cases exceeding $35,000.

Only 11.2 per cent of the average charge covered the period before surgery, and 5.1 per cent covered the actual operating procedure. Expenses involving donors amounted to 3.4 per cent. The bulk of the costs— 80.3 per cent— went for post-operative care, which varied from a few hours to several months.

Thus, the average postoperative charges were $15,026, with most of that sum going for laboratory tests and intensive care.

The Heart Institute estimates the maximum number of potential candidates for heart transplants is around 12,000 a year, although more than 200,000 Americans under 65 die annually of heart disease.

About half succumb before they can reach a hospital. Complicating illnesses make transplants impractical for thousands of others. The Heart Institute predicted that the number of candidates would continue to be sharply limited until strides are made in hastening the effective treatment of those stricken with heart attacks and in improving transplantation techniques.

Among the major obstacles confronting scientists is the question of prolonged survival after transplantation. Thus far immunologic rejection has been the principal stumbling block in this regard.

Added to this problem are the limited supply of donors, the absence of adequate methods to preserve hearts, a need to match donors with recipients and a lack of proper facilities for transporting donors and donor organs.

The Heart Institute's experts believe that new approaches, such as xenografting— using the hearts of animals— will be necessary if artificial hearts will be needed to provide cardiac replacements for the maximum number of candidates.

They estimate that if immunologic problems are solved and a device is perfected to assist in circulating the blood, up to 22,000 patients would qualify for transplants every year.

This might increase the total annual cost of transplantation to more than $200,000,000. In that case, the nation would be confronted with a major medical bill so large that considerable financial aid would have to come from expanded and more comprehensive insurance plans as well as from public funds.

The insurance industry as a whole would therefore be well advised to examine their policies in the light of transplantation operations of all kinds.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)— Apollo 14's explorers completed man's longest moon walk today but a gasping struggle to climb a steep slope halted them short of a prime goal, the rim of a crater named Cone.

Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell returned to the lunar lander Antares after 4½ hours on the moon and prepared themselves and the ship to start the return voyage to earth.

The second walk lasted as long as the first one had on Friday.

Despite their disappointment in not reaching Cone Crater as part of their geological field trip they did gather ancient rocks, dig trenches and sink core tubes four feet into the soil.

More than anything else, however, they wanted to reach the rim of Cone. They had bet many of their fellow astronauts on earth that they could do it.

But as they climbed higher and higher on the long boulder's strewn slope they became more and more exhausted. They breathed heavily and their heart beats nearly doubled.

Mission Control advised them to stop about two-thirds of the way up the 400-foot-high moon mountain.

"That's the order of the day," Shepard lamented.

"It's farther than it looks," said a disappointed Mitchell.

So they came back down the slope and continued their scientific expedition and by the time they were back at Antares, they were in a jovial mood.

With color television recording his moves, Shepard took out two golf balls he had smuggled to the moon and whacked them with a golf-club-shaped handle from his tool cart. Then he took a spearlike part from a solar wind experiment and hurled it like a javelin.

In the airless one-sixth gravity of the moon, the objects really traveled.

"It goes miles and miles and miles," Shepard said.

"Beautiful," Mitchell remarked.

But on man's first attempt to climb a moon mountain they immediately encountered trouble and had to alternately pull and carry their two-wheel tool cart up the long grade, making their way around rocks as large as 20 feet across.

They huffed and puffed and stopped often for rest. At one point about halfway up, Shepard doubted they could make it.

"Aw, gee whiz, let's give it a whirl," Mitchell urged. "I think we'll find what we're looking for at the top."

They were seeking some of the oldest rocks on the moon, perhaps dating back 4.6 billion years to the birth of the moon.

They moved ahead, but Shepard reported, "It's hard, hard, hard."

With their heartbeats at 150, up from a normal 84 for Shepard and 90 for Mitchell, ground controllers again told them to rest.

They sagged down against a boulder, and at this point were directed to go no farther.

"We can press on and make it," Mitchell pleaded. But the ground said time was running out on them and they had several scientific tasks to conduct before returning to their lunar lander Antares, some 3,000 feet away.

They were to launch themselves off the moon at 1:47 p.m. EST today, flying to a rendezvous with the orbiting mother-ship, flown by Stuart A. Roosa.

As they headed back toward the landing craft, their heart beats settled down as did their suit temperature.

During the climb down the slope, Mission Control told them, "You're making better time coming down than you did going up."

"It's a different direction," Shepard quipped.

At the top of Cone they had hoped to find some of the oldest rocks on the moon, dating back 4.6 billion years.

Even so, they may have collected some of this ancient material on the way up.

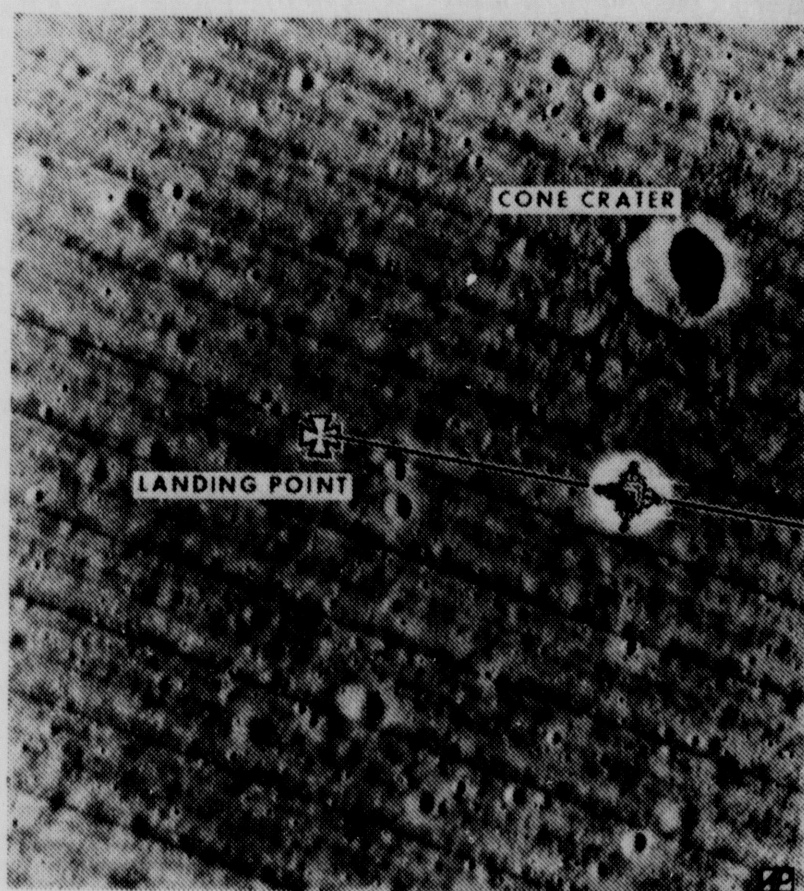

"These rocks look awfully old," Mitchell reported.

"It's a fantastic view from here," he said.

Shepard had left their lunar lander Antares at 3:20 a.m. to start their second excursion on the dusty, desolate surface. Mitchell followed four minutes later.

A color television camera recorded their initial steps, but was left pointing in the general direction of their geology trip when they left and the astronauts soon were out of sight. They could not carry the camera with them because it is powered by an electrical cord hooked to Antares.

Apollo 14's second surface adventure started at 3:20 a.m. when Shepard once again planted his boot in the dark dust. Mitchell followed four minutes later. Color television relayed their footfalls to earth.

"It's a beautiful day here at Fra Mauro Base," Mitchell reported.

Aiming his camera at the earth a quarter million miles away, he said, "Trying to get a picture of home sweet home right up there."

Each had spent about 4½ hours outside Friday. The exit from the lunar module Antares was two hours early because of the eagerness of the astronauts to get back to work.

Polo woman arrested in death of husband

POLO— Mrs. Dorothy Reed, 49, 708 Franklin St., Polo, was arrested at 3:30 p.m. Friday and charged with the murder of her husband, John H. Reed. The arrest was made by Ogle County Sheriff's Police after an investigation by the sheriff's department and Polo police.

Mrs. Reed was brought before Ogle County Associate Judge William B. Phillips and informed of the charge. Judge Phillips appointed a public defender to represent her.

She is currently being held in the Ogle County Jail without bond.

John H. Reed, 54, died Dec. 23, 1970, in the Veterans Administration Hospital, Madison, Wis. He is alleged to have died from arsenic poisoning.

The Ogle County Sheriff's Department was notified by Dane County, Wis., authorities following an autopsy which proved valuable in this disclosure.

The Reeds had lived quietly in Polo for some 30 years and reared a son and daughter.

EARN'S PH.D.— William Butts, blind from birth and once called unteachable, culminated seven years of study when he was awarded his Ph.D. by Columbia University in New York City. The 48-year-old professor of history and religion at Virginia State College in Norfolk financed his doctorate with $300 of his own money, a series of foundation grants, fellowships and partial pay from Virginia State. Killer on rampage shot by police GRANTS, N.M. (AP)— A man sought in the killing of a child went on a two-state rampage Friday, killing two persons and wounding two others before he was shot dead by police in a chase through the Southwest, authorities reported.

"I think he wanted to die," said Grants Police Chief Jay Woodward who, along with four of his officers, shot and killed 38-year-old Bertram Greenberg of West Covina, Calif.

Woodward said Greenberg apparently tried to commit suicide by slashing his wrists before he was killed.

Authorities in California said Greenberg was a former mental patient and was being sought in connection with the strangulation of a 13-year-old girl Thursday.

The shooting climaxed a rampage that left an Arizona highway patrolman and a young Missouri man dead and the man's wife and another patrolman wounded.

South Viets meet foe in Cambodia; kill 91

SAIGON (AP)— South Vietnamese forces sweeping through eastern Cambodia encountered a battle-tested North Vietnamese unit today and reported 91 enemy killed in one of the biggest battles since the allies crossed the Cambodian border last May.

South Vietnamese headquarters said one prisoner and 27 weapons were captured, and 10 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 37 wounded.

The fight was triggered early today when North Vietnamese troops from the 9th Division used mortars and ground troops against the command post of a South Vietnamese task force near the Chup Rubber Plantation east of Kompong Cham.

Behind allied air and artillery support, the South Vietnamese tanks, armored personnel carriers and 400 rangers repulsed the attackers before dawn, the command said.

A Saigon spokesman said the prisoner identified the enemy force as part of the 272nd Regiment of the 9th, a veteran of combat against Americans in South Vietnam. The 9th Division entered Cambodia last May after the allied incursion and is now near the rubber plantation about 25 miles from South Vietnam's border and 110 miles northwest of Saigon.

Twenty-thousand South Vietnamese began a campaign this week against North Vietnamese base areas and sanctuaries in eastern Cambodia to pre-empt any dry-season offensive planned by the Communist command. The move also is to protect Saigon during withdrawal of 20,000 U.S. troops from the capital area during the next three months.

There have been indications that the North Vietnamese 9th and 7th divisions have been trying to re-establish sanctuaries in Cambodia.

North Vietnamese gunners sent 70 mortar shells into the South Vietnamese ranger and armored cavalry positions, Friday, but headquarters said South Vietnamese casualties were light.

A companion sweep of northern South Vietnam near Laos by 29,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops was stalled for a second day today by rain and turbulent winds, but U.S. commanders said little indication of recent North Vietnamese activity has been found.

Their assessment and a statement by the U.S. Command that the drive was to counter an enemy buildup threatening northwestern South Vietnam underscored doubts by observers as to the true objective.

The proposed battle plan was understood to have called for a drive into Laos by South Vietnamese troops using American air and logistical support. But there was speculation in Saigon that President Nixon has not made up his mind. The President is calling the shots during the operation, sources said.

A pro-Communist Patriotic Lao Front spokesman was quoted as saying a portion of some of the allied troops along the border have advanced 12 miles into Laos. The Nippon Denpa News of Tokyo said the charge was made by Phao Phim Phachanh, chief information officer of the PLF stationed in Hanoi, in an interview with a correspondent. But a spokesman for the U.S. Command said, "There are no U.S. ground combat troops in Laos," and the South Vietnamese command also denied that Saigon ground combat troops are there.

Associated Press Correspondent Michael Putzel, returning from a 24-hour trip to allied forward positions east of the Lao frontier, said there was no activity there. Rain, low cloud covers and wind sharply curtailed U.S. air activity, and ground troops are reluctant to move without an air umbrella.

American infantrymen are operating off Route 9 within a few hundred yards of the border. Brig. Gen. John J. Hill, commander of the 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Infantry Division, told Putzel they are under orders not to cross the border.

American tanks and personnel carriers are spread out along a seven-mile stretch of the highway from Lang Vei to the border, but the allied troops have spotted nothing and are doing very little.

Threat of civil war in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)— Religious rioting threatened to erupt into civil war in Northern Ireland today after a British soldier and two Irishmen were killed in a shootout between British troops and members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. Another civilian blew himself up when a bomb he was about to throw exploded.

The three hours of fighting began in Belfast's Roman Catholic district shortly after midnight and was one of the worst outbreaks in two years of strife between the Catholic minority and Protestants in the British province. The IRA is trying to drive the British from the six northern counties and bring them under the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

Six civilians were wounded when a bomb went off in the Stankill Road area, a Protestant district, and terrorists blew up a major water main in Belfast's suburbs.

Police said 37 persons were arrested, 11 juveniles.

The latest trouble started four nights earlier when British soldiers searched for hidden arms in Catholic districts. Increasingly bitter clashes between civilians and soldiers have occurred each night since.

Thousands of troops remained on alert in the province at dawn.

The troops appeared shocked by the death of their first comrade killed in action since the army came to Belfast to put down rioting in August 1969.

The soldier was on a foot patrol that came under machine-gun fire in the Ardoyne district. Four other soldiers were wounded, two seriously. British officers said both the civilians who were shot dead were snipers picked off by British marksmen.

A witness described a street in Ardoyne as "like a valley of lead" as bullets were dipping and spraying from one side to the other.

Observers said mobs ranged in size from a few dozen to a hundred or more. Fire and acid bombs, bricks and dynamite sticks were hurled at police and troops by rioters racing from street to street through connecting alleyways.

Damage to the Robinson car was $600; to Ripley's auto, $900, and to Kulikovskis' vehicle, $1,000.

Robinson was eastbound and attempting a right turn off the roadway when Ripley, northbound, was attempting a left turn into the roadway. Kulikovskis was westbound when Ripley entered the roadway into his path. Kulikovskis' car struck Ripley's auto and forced it into the Robinson car.

Jacob Schmidt, 64, Oak Park, had $600 damage done to his auto following an accident at 4 p.m. Friday, one mile north of Rochelle on U.S. 51. Schmidt's car and one driven by Dennis Schmidt was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions.

Damage to the Russell vehicle was $150.

James Ellmaker, 45, Sterling, was driving east on the blacktop road, 1½ miles south of Mt. Morris, Friday when he lost control of his car on an icy patch and overturned on the shoulder of the road. The accident happened at 11:10 a.m. Damage to the car was $200.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE P-566: Rev. Arthur Schenck is a retired clergyman. But he occupies pulpits almost every Sunday as a guest minister when other pastors are ill or on vacation.

"When I was younger," he said, "I volunteered to help one of my parishioners put up hay. Several neighbors were also on hand to assist."

"One of them was very profane. He could hardly utter a couple of sentences without using the Lord's name in vain."

"But when he was introduced to me and found out that I was a preacher, he apologized and said he'd omit his profanity."

"It rather shocked him when I told him not to put me ahead of God!"

"For if he thought it was O.K. to swear in front of the Almighty, but not in front of me, then he was elevating me above God!"

Verbal Pollution

In this age when stress is being placed on purifying the air, as well as our rivers and lakes, we should likewise remember the value of pure language.

Profanity is pollution of our communication mediums, both spoken and written!

Yet many authors and playwrights nowadays inject excessive profanity or vulgarity into their works as a lazy means of producing shocked laughter. They mistakenly think the crowd's nervous tittering means the play's dialogue is funny! Not so!

And I use that word "lazy" to describe such writers, for it takes much more talent and time to create plots with wholesome humor that will evoke true laughter!

Second-raters stud their scripts with filthy language! "Dr. Crane," a cultured chemical engineer recently commented, "I just got back from Times Square and Broadway in New York City."

"I hadn't been there for several years. What a change!"

"The street abounds with filthy degenerates."

"Pornographic shops confront you on all sides."

"Movies are vulgar documentaries of lewd sex in Sweden and Denmark."

"My partner and I, plus a few others, also stood out from the crowd because we were dressed neatly and had haircuts!"

"The human pollution even exceeds that of the air and water!"

No wonder Mayor Lindsay has a tough time!

But parents and all those who aspire to be cultured, should help cooperate with our faithful public school teachers.

The latter inveigh against vulgar speech, including excessive slang and certainly profanity.

Words are actually the tools of the mind so they should be precise and appropriate.

A teen-age girl who fails to think through to the conclusion of her ideas, will thus throw in slang as a lazy stopgap, as:

"It was a swell show. The food was swell. The music was swell. I had a swell time."

That word "swell" is an inexact term to help her avoid the mental effort of using the precise terms, "entertaining," "delicious," "romantic" and "delightful," respectively.

Words, like a carpenter's tools, must be adapted to the specific task involved.

A carpenter doesn't use a crude hatchet for exact work nor for all his jobs, since that would be like the coed's lazy use of "swell."

Words are thus the precision instruments of our mental tool box! Keep them sharp and use them in proper places!

Studying Lloyd petition

Circuit Judge Wesley Eberle, Freeport, Friday took under advisement a petition to determine the status of contraband seized in a 1969 raid on the Frank (Bookie) Lloyd residence here, conducted by FBI agents, Rockford and Dixon Police.

Materials in question include nearly $7,000 in cash and gambling equipment seized by the agents during the raid.

Since the raid Lloyd was indicted, found guilty on two charges of gambling in a jury trial, and sentenced to four months in Vandalia, a $1,000 fine on each of two charges, and given four years probation. He is free on bond pending an appeal.

Lloyd contends that some of the money seized belonged to his mother and wife.

Eberle gave State's Attorney Albert Kennedy and defense attorney Henry Dixon 14 days in which to file briefs in the case.

Former officer guilty

ROCHELLE — Dalton Litch, 33, a former Rochelle Police officer, was found guilty Friday afternoon on charges of aggravated assault against Roger Clark, also a former Rochelle police officer. A jury of eight men and four women reached the decision after deliberating for two hours. Judge William B. Phillips presided at the trial.

According to the testimony of Sgt. Thomas Preston, of the Rochelle Police Department, the assault occurred June 6 at the police station after Clark and a fellow officer, Charles Webb, had taken Litch into custody outside of Vaughn's Tap and taken him to the police station.

Sentencing for Litch will take place at 11 a.m. Feb. 17. He is free on a $5,000 bond.

The case was prosecuted by Ogle County Assistant State's Attorney Alan Cargerman. Litch was represented by Atty. Edward Diedrich, DeKalb.

Woes of collegiate press

For a really dismal view of life in these United States, turn to the collegiate press.

Old Grads will find no who-has-pinned-whom gossip columns, no space wasted on the infantile shenanigans of fraternities. All is now politics and ideology.

The collegiate press, which seems to have been taken over by the radical left, is in the forefront of the battle against fascist repression, which it sees everywhere it looks. Quite predictably, this has inspired crackdowns by those arch repressors, college administrations.

In a story syndicated to college papers around the country, the College Press Service reports that 25 "overt acts of censorship" against student papers and the shutdowns of two campus radio stations have occurred since the start of the current school year.

Administrative actions include the firing of editors, evictions and lockouts from offices, freezing of funds, suppression of copy and outright prohibition to publish.

For example, the papers at two black schools, Dillard University and Norfolk State, were shut down this semester, the former when the editor refused to submit copy to a faculty adviser for prepublication O.K.

At Niagara University, a Catholic institution, the "Index" was threatened with shutdown for running an ad for abortion referral and a "Wanted for Genocide" poster of President Nixon. An abortion ad brought a lockout at the "Concordian" of Concordia College in Minnesota.

The managing editor of the "Arrow" at the University of Southern California was fired when she refused to change an editorial objected to by the paper's adviser.

Last year the "Argus" at the University of Maryland was censored when it attempted to run a photo of a burning American flag and this year became a center of controversy again when the editors announced a pornography-writing contest.

The number of these incidents, says CPS, "does not take into account the 'subtle' forms of intimidation or actual copy blackout which do not get reported." Forty per cent of student editors responding to a questionnaire from CPS stated they had experienced some form of censorship or harassment.

"And one thing seems pretty sure," concludes the story, "it's going to get worse."

That things are going to get worse is, of course, a basic tenet of the revolutionary faith. It would be useless to try to tell college editors that they are enjoying freedoms their predecessors never even conceived of.

It would be useless to point out that there is a world of difference between censorship by a government official and censorship by the owners or sponsors of a particular publication. Every publisher of every newspaper in the country exercises "censorship" over his editors.

It would be useless to try to explain that those who pay taxes or contribute funds to support a school have a right to object when what they consider good taste or morality is violated—with their money.

With all their excesses, the new breed of student editors has brought fresh life and validity to the formerly innocuous collegiate press. But too many of them are totalitarians at heart.

What they mean by freedom of the press is freedom for them to print what they think should be printed. They don't necessarily believe in freedom of the press for anybody else.

"Tuna war" issues

The American "tuna war" with Ecuador might be of interest primarily as comic relief from Vietnam, the Middle East and other major contemporary crises if it did not also have something rather serious to say about human affairs and nature in general at this particular crisis-ridden point in history.

The dispute has been going off and one for some years and involves fishing rights in the waters off South America where three nations—Peru, Ecuador and Chile—claim territorial jurisdiction out to 200 miles from their coasts. These waters happen to be particularly rich hunting for American-flag boats supplying the insatiable home appetite for sandwiches and casseroles.

Consequently, they ignore the Latin jurisdictional claims, inciting protests and, from Ecuador, forceful retaliation. To start with, seizure and fining—something like an average $35,000—of American boats. A relatively cheap and botherless way out would appear to be the purchase of fishing licenses, which the Ecuadorans are perfectly willing to sell at $10,000 per. But the U.S. government discourages such accommodation because it would amount to recognizing the 200-mile limit. Washington, a conservative among world governments on this point, refuses to acknowledge anything beyond 12 miles.

So to compensate the fishermen caught in the middle, Washington has been quietly paying the fines while the seizures and counteractions go on. The dispute has escalated beyond ships and fish to the point where Ecuador has demanded the withdrawal of the U.S. military mission as retaliation for U.S. suspension of arms aid.

And so it continues to go. What the wrangling is all about is not really 200- or 12-mile limits or licenses versus fines, but the control and exploitation of a natural resource. In this case, it is a product of the sea—tuna—which the United States regards as belonging to no one and therefore anyone's for the taking. In this case, again, anyone being defined as the United States since American boats predominate in these waters.

The Latin countries demand exclusive control over those portions of the resource in their immediate vicinities, although none do any large-scale commercial fishing themselves.

The impasse raises a question about the proper use of world resources in general. If the United States and three basically friendly nations can't come to a rational understanding on tuna, what is the prospect for rational sharing among all nations of much more vital resources of planet earth—not only plant and animal products but the very water, air and earth itself—which, if the forecasters of increasing ecological crisis are correct, will be essential?

President's doctrine economic

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)— It now seems clear President Nixon is extending the Nixon Doctrine to American economic strategy.

In foreign aid, as in foreign military alliances the U.S. profile will be lowered.

MORE ASSISTANCE will be channeled through regional and worldwide organizations—the Asian Development Bank, Inter-American Development Bank, World Bank, International Development Association, Inter-American Social Development Institute.

A prerequisite for aid (where feasible) will be the willingness of the country seeking help to do what it can for itself with the resources it has.

THIS INCLUDES A willingness to assess and collect taxes and step down hard on evaders, a readiness to cut government corruption to manageable levels, a program for bringing inflation under control and willingness to eliminate unnecessary government spending. That is, it sometimes will require very tough domestic measures.

More of the economic aid planning for countries and regions will be done by local planners, less by Americans. The United States will step up technical and administrative training programs for countries or regions short of first-rate economists, economic administrators and technicians.

MORE COUNTRIES will be pressured to give more aid. The theory here is that even underdeveloped lands have some specialists who can pass expert knowledge along to others. And many countries are rich enough to do more than they're now doing.

The new Nixon emphasis shows up in his fiscal 1971 supplementary requests to Congress, in his 1972 budget just out, and in programs being discussed at the White House, the State Department and the Agency for International Development.

ONE OBJECTIVE IS to keep the United States out of the internal politics of foreign countries.

Direct aid has too often embroiled this nation in local domestic differences and, at times, brought us more enemies than friends. (This is not solely an American problem. A recent U.S. study has found Moscow plagued with the same troubles.)

THE SECOND OBJECTIVE, of course, is to make the American dollar go for more. Obviously, the United States can't give each underdeveloped country all the aid it requires. American aid must be channeled where it will be most effective. And used as seed money to trigger other giving and greater efforts by the country being helped.

THE THIRD OBJECTIVE is to get more effective foreign aid. Government and private studies have shown that American planning for the needs of a foreign country is often unsuitable to local conditions and sometimes does more harm than good. Even if the American plan is good, it is still a "foreign" plan so far as the government receiving aid is concerned. And therefore isn't effective.

The studies indicate the Marshall Plan for Europe was effective because the planning was done by the Marshall Plan countries, it was regional and it did involve a great deal of internal belt tightening and sacrifice.

Help for shoppers

By RICHARD PRATT

With all the fuss and fanfare, charge and countercharge, generated by the consumer movement, it's easy to become fascinated by the actors and forget the play.

YET LITTLE by little, consumerism is making a dent in some areas of business tradition and practice. And some of these dents can save you money, if you're aware of them.

The two most recent ones are unit pricing and open code dating. Unit pricing is the practice of listing the price of products in terms of a common measurement such as an ounce or a yard. Open code dating is a way of designating how long an item has been on the shelf.

NEITHER OF THESE practices has been greeted with much enthusiasm by retailers. They tend to increase costs, and they are a bother.

But several national chains of supermarkets have accepted one, or both, and there's a good chance that competitive pressure may force others to follow.

LET'S TAKE A look at each separately and see how it can affect shopping practices.

Unit pricing is one way of making price-comparison shopping easy. Anyone who has spent any time in a supermarket trying to find the best buy in cornflakes, for example, knows you need a computer to find the price-per-ounce of all the available packages.

UNIT PRICING dissolves all need for customer arithmetic by reducing prices to a common denominator.

Using corn flakes as an example again, the store will simply list the price-per-ounce for each package. Thus the shopper can tell whether it actually costs less to buy the superjumbo box.

Before unit pricing, at times, the economy size sometimes cost more than the smaller packages.

UNIT PRICING is not a substitute for package pricing. They exist side by side. Cornflakes will still be priced on a package basis, as well as per ounce.

Open code dating is a way of bringing to public notice an age-rating system stores have used all along.

For years, food processors and stores have marked products with a code to denote age. Using the code, clerks could tell when package freshness had deteriorated to the point where it should be removed.

IF YOU WEREN'T a grocery clerk, however, you needed to be a cryptologist to decipher the markings. In one code, for example, the number 4033 meant the package should be sold before July 3. You found this out by adding the first and fourth digits to get the month, and the second and third digits to get the day.

NOW SOME stores are using simple dating codes as a marketing device to attract customers. Anyone with enough sense to be shopping at all can figure out what "exp. Feb. 20" means.

Open code dating is more of an amenity than a money saver. The typical family's dollar loss from spoiled foods is probably small. But you don't have to crack many spoiled eggs, or whiff much overage cottage cheese to appreciate the advantages of a system that lets you cull your own purchases.

Valentine's Day with King Family

"Valentine's Day With the King Family," a program dedicated to the many phases of love spanning all generations from young to old, will be telecast Feb. 13, 8:30 to 9:30 p.m., in color on Channel 9.

A Valentine confection in pink, white and red, the hour features the 45 members of the King Family which includes the King Sisters, Alvino Rey, Bob Clarke, Kent Larsen, the King Cousins, and the King Kiddies.

Opening the show the entire family sings "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing" and then each takes out a harmonica and they play a catchy musical, "Heart of My Heart." The feminine members of the family charmingly offer "Let's Do It—Let's Fall in Love," and then the King Sisters harmonize "You'd Be So Easy to Love."

The next segment features Cam and Laurette singing "Wives and Lovers," Jon and Xan in their rendition of "I Think I Like You," and Tina and the King Cousins with "Secret Love."

Alvino Rey plays "Lover" on his electric guitar, and then Marilyn and the Kids take over the spotlight with "Love Is the Reason for It All," with Kent joining Marilyn in a duet of "Love Is a Simple Thing."

The mother and daughter medley includes "Funny Valentine," "I Love You," and "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing."

Bob Clarke opens the fifth portion of the program reading James Whitcomb Riley's poem, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine." Then in a touching segment Alyce sings "How Deep Is the Ocean," with the entire family then joining once again to sing "Love."

The introduction of six married couples of the King Family concludes the Valentine's Day program. Each couple wears the suits and gowns worn on their respective wedding days. "True Love" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" are sung by the husbands and wives.

Oral Roberts' special is slated Feb. 12

Oral Roberts' Valentine Special, "Love Is," will be televised on Channel 4 Feb. 12, 6:30-7:30 p.m.

The theme of the show carries a certain timeliness, and greater meaning than just the romantic, starry-eyed lovers usually associated with St. Valentine's Day. Today's young generation, caught up in the tide of symbols, has come to use the term "love" loosely. Its real meaning is the purpose of the Oral Roberts' special.

From the opening narratives, "Love Is," by guest stars Jimmie Rodgers, Sarah Vaughan and Coleen Gray, to the climax when Oral Roberts drives home the point that "love's not—till you give it away," the theme is woven into the total look of the show.

Actress Coleen Gray, in a change-of-pace reading, presents mature love in three sonnets by Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Jesse Jackson will face Black press

The Rev. Jesse Jackson will be the guest questioned by members of the Black press on "Issues Unlimited," a WGN Television Program Department presentation Feb. 7 at 7 p.m., on Channel 9.

Hurley Green, editor of the Bulletin Newspaper, a chain of weeklies circulated on Chicago's Southside, and the 1970-71 Illinois Editor of the Year, is the moderator.

Panel members interviewing Rev. Jackson include: Fred Wall, publisher, Chicago Courier; Charles Armstrong, publisher, Chicago South Suburban News; John Woodford, editor of Muhammed Speaks, and Jimmy Smith, editor-publisher, Chicago Gazette.

"Issues Unlimited" represents a first news interview effort by all-Black newsmen on a major station, in a prime television viewing time.

10-year-old on Showcase

"Artists' Showcase," with host Louis Sudler, will present Gail Niwa, pianist, and Elaine Russell, soprano, in a program featuring both classical and contemporary music on WGN Television, Feb. 7, from 8:30 to 9 p.m.

This one-half hour colorcast is presented once a month on Channel 9 and features Robert Trendler and the WGN Orchestra.

Miss Gail Niwa, a gifted 10-year-old pianist, will play the 2nd and 3rd Movement of Beethoven's "Concerto in B Flat," accompanied by the WGN orchestra.

Word of mouth. It's great if you can get it. And last year, May Queen got it from women who appreciate real value in Dixon, and throughout the country. Of course, the fact that May Queen panty hose look good, feel good, wear well and only cost $1.39 didn't hurt. That's why Eichler's discriminating customers talked and talked . . . about May Queen . . . and came back for more.

The Bob Hope Desert Classic, the world's only five-day, 90-hole golf event, will be televised on NBC coast to coast on February 13 and 14.

To interview Sen. Hughes

Harold Hughes, Democratic Senator from Iowa, will be interviewed by Elizabeth Drew on "Thirty Minutes with . . ." on Feb. 9 at 9:30 p.m., on the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network.

Senator Hughes has been called a man of "balanced contradictions"—a Democrat from a Republican conservative stronghold; an avid hunter who believes in stiff gun controls; a reformed alcoholic who persuaded the Iowa legislature to replace dry laws with realistic liquor statutes.

He was elected to the Senate in 1968, after serving three consecutive terms as Governor of his home state, the only Democrat ever to do so.

Hughes is generally considered a dark-horse contender in a crowded field of undeclared candidates for the Presidency, but is largely unknown by the general public. His travels this year will be designed to help people remember his name—often confused with that mysterious entrepreneur, Howard Hughes.

Senator Harold Hughes will be questioned about a wide range of issues by Mrs. Drew, Washington editor of Atlantic Monthly, on the program.

This Is Your Life to feature comedian

A rotund comedian, star of television, motion pictures, and nightclubs is the guest celebrity honored by Ralph Edwards on "This Is Your Life," to be seen nationally the week of Feb. 8.

Born in Dayton, Ohio, he enlisted in the Marines at 17, and began the slow ascent into the stratosphere of showbusiness. Among the guest "surprisers" who visit with the subject are long-time television favorite Garry Moore, who called him "the best Arthur Godfrey Talent Scout loser in history," and producer Stanley Kramer, who gave him his first big movie break.

Some additional clues as to his identity: once worked in sewers to support himself, and later sold paintings in back alleys; his first showbusiness breaks came because he could imitate chipmunks, airplanes, and Madison Square Garden fights.

"This Is Your Life" is now seen on 200 stations across the country each week.

Business News . . . and Views

Aloys M. Wolff, 1714 W. Fourth St., has recently retired from the Chicago and NorthWestern Railway Co., culminating a career of 45 years with the railroad.

Retiring as a B&B Foreman, he plans to continue to reside at his present address and is looking forward to having more time for traveling.

In a letter to him, Larry S. Provo, president of the NorthWestern, expressed his appreciation for a job well done in a career that was "highlighted by your energy, interest, capabilities and devotion to duty."

Blazek Honored

A certificate of merit has been awarded to W. F. Blazek, manager, Credit Bureau of Lee County by Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc., for service to the individual consumer, the community and the credit industry.

Announcement of the award was made by John L. Spafford, Houston, president of ACB, which is an international trade association serving more than 3,400 credit bureau and collection service members in the U.S., Canada, and several foreign countries.

Credit reporting and collection service executives who earn the Certificate of Merit Award are eligible to compete for 32 Regional Leadership Awards which will be presented by ACB. Regional award winners will be announced at the four ACB regional conferences scheduled this spring.

Enters CLUB

Edgar Wagner, Amboy, with a yield of 159.35 bushels of No. 2 corn per acre, has been entered in the 1970 DeKalb 200 Bushel Club.

He planted on May 3 in 30-inch rows at a seeding rate of 23,000 plants per acre. His fertilizer program included 190 pounds of nitrogen, 34 pounds of phosphate and 10 pounds of potash. Weeds were controlled with Ramrod and 2-4D.

The purpose of the DeKalb 200 Bushel Club, now in its 10th year, is to promote idea exchange, stimulated by friendly competition, among the nation's leading corn farmers. Each entrant in the program provides detailed information on his own corn-growing practices. These data are organized by program officials and a composite of results is tabulated. Through the sharing of this information, the program attempts to encourage practices which will help farmers gain the maximum amount of net profit from each acre of corn.

Norman Rockwell: color him 'blase'

It would not surprise anyone to find Norman Rockwell living in rural Massachusetts in a 150-year-old white frame house that once belonged to Aaron Burr. Neither should it surprise anyone that Rockwell's studio in the back yard appears to be a converted red New England barn—which it is.

"It looks like him," says his secretary, Dorothy McGregor. "Mr. Rockwell is a part of the America that a lot of people loved."

The America that Rockwell touched upon for 50 years as cover illustrator for the late Saturday Evening Post was rich in smiles, flags, mother love and red barns. He painted 317 covers and only Santa Claus received more adoring fan mail.

"A great many people identify with Mr. Rockwell these days," said his secretary. "The demand for his work—and his mail—has increased tremendously, particularly in the last few years."

The last few years have been tough on smiles, flags, mother love and red barns. They also have been tough on Norman Rockwell—but not as tough as you might think.

"Something funny has happened," he said in a recent interview. "I'm 76 years old and all of a sudden everything that they've brushed under the rug all my life has come out, and they can't brush it under again."

Things have changed. Rockwell's "Four Freedoms" series of World War II was his patriotic monument and, he says, it is likely to remain so. "You couldn't paint them now," he said. "All those subjects are out."

It might surprise a few people to learn that during his long career at the easel, Norman Rockwell has been depicting life as his readers and editors wished to see it—not necessarily as Norman Rockwell wished to see it.

"I think I was trying to express a sense of security that I didn't feel—that everybody loves each other," he said. "In a way, I regret it."

"If I could only be an activist and have a definite feeling for something and be willing to die for it . . . instead I'm—not sophisticated, that's not the word—but blase. If I get an idea and a magazine wants it, I do it."

If the magazine didn't want it, Norman Rockwell didn't do it. There were no blacks in his portraits of ordinary Americans for the Post, he said, "because George Horace Lorimer, who was a very liberal man, told me never to show colored people except as servants."

Look magazine has published Rockwell regularly since the Post folded and permits him more latitude. "I've done several racial pictures—little girls being taken to school by marshals, colored kids moving into white neighborhoods, that sort of thing," he said.

Rockwell was born Norman Percevel in New York on Feb. 3, 1894. His parents were amateur painters, so he and his younger brother, Jarvis, were encouraged to draw.

At 13, he began studying art. At 16, his art teacher was getting him magazine assignments. Soon, Rockwell was earning $50 a month as art editor of Boy's Life, a position that required him to drop out of high school.

Rockwell married when he was 22, just after selling his first cover to the Post. It showed a disgusted boy pushing a baby carriage while his friends were trotting off to play baseball.

"A lot of things have happened to this country since that cover," he said, not smiling.

Coffee break benefit

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—How much is a coffee break worth?

Figuring that state employees devote "at least 30 minutes a day" to gulping coffee during specified rest periods, deputy legislative fiscal officer W.R. Barrows determined this week it works out to a fringe benefit equal to 5 per cent of a worker's pay.

'The Photographers' televised Feb. 7

"The Photographers" — the story of five of the world's leading professional photographers and how and where and why they work — will be examined in fast-moving color on the first Alcoa Hour television special of 1971, to be shown nationally over the Hughes Television Network on Sunday evening, Feb. 7. (channels 4, 9, 23).

The "photography explosion" has been raging in America for many years. Photography is the closest thing we have to a national hobby. About 70 per cent of our families have at least one camera, and last year, Americans spent more than two and one-quarter billion dollars taking four and one-half billion pictures.

In "The Photographers", the Alcoa Hour takes five major craftsmen of the camera: Alfred Eisenstaedt, the father of modern photo-journalism; Larry Burrows, combat photographer, in Vietnam for nine years; John Dominis, whose Life Magazine series on the cats of Africa became a best-selling picture book; Mary Ellen Mark, young free-lance photographer on assignment in Algeria; Norman Parkinson, international fashion photographer.

Eisenstaedt — 72 years old, the veteran of more than 2,000 photo assignments — will be shown photographing movie star Sally Kellerman (she played Hot Lips in the film M.A.S.H.) on a beach, in her boudoir, and in other vital areas of action.

John Dominis, a photo-journalist for 20 years, is known world-wide for having added a new dimension to nature photography. His sequence takes place in the remote wildlife preserves of Idaho, where he tracks down the rare and elusive Bighorn sheep, using remote-control, motorized cameras on 24-hour-a-day vigils.

Norman Parkinson — an elegant practitioner of the fashion photographer's art — is shown photographing actress-model Marissa Mell in Rome.

Mary Ellen Mark is a pretty 29-year-old photographer whose talent is getting strangers to reveal themselves. She is shown in "The Photographers" on an assignment in Algeria for Paris Match magazine, doing street photography, haunting the Casbah, flicking over trackless fastnesses of field and desert.

The final sequence is an arresting film study of photographer Larry Burrows, a veteran of nine years of carnage and camera work in Vietnam, photographing the homecoming of one of the war's youngest victims — 10-year-old Nguyen Lau. Hit in the back by shrapnel, Nguyen was paralyzed from the waist down and taken to the United States for medical attention by the Committee of Responsibility. Burrows' story in "The Photographers" is the return and readjustment to the Vietnamese way of life of this young paraplegic after 2½ years of therapy in America.

Report to farmers slated this Sunday

Part one of "Report to the American Farmer," a two-part television special on minimum- and no-tillage practices, weed control and herbicide selection, will be broadcast by WHBF-TV, Channel 4, Rock Island, on Sunday at noon.

The half-hour telecast will cover minimum- and no-tillage practices, including erosion control, chemical weed and insect control, yields, disease, soil moisture and other factors associated with minimum and no till. Farmers and university scientists will discuss their experiences and opinions of these tillage practices. Among the important questions answered for the farmer will be whether minimum- or no-till practices fit his operations, how important weed control might be, whether yield reductions result, possibilities of disease and others.

Part two of "Report to the American Farmer" will be presented on Feb. 21.

A boxer turns to God.

A lot of men think they can make it without God. But a boxer who got to know God better found himself a better man.

He turned to fighting more important things, such as sin, disease, and death.

He fights them with prayer, turning to God to heal himself and others. In one instance, he was healed of cancer through recognition of God as Spirit, the only real substance of man.

Hear more this Sunday about this practical, strengthening view of God.

OK, coach,
now what?

Evidently, coach Ron Semetis suggested the right move, for Ron Mekeel, let go of La Salle-Peru's Dennis Gray long enough to get back in a more advantageous position and win, 7-0. Mekeel met Kewanee's Dan Breedlove in the NCIC wrestling tournament semifinals of the 132 pounds class early this morning. (Telegraph Photo)

Mounders clinch championship tie

Mt. Morris clinched at least a tie for the North Blackhawk Conference basketball title Friday night with a resounding 80-69 lashing of Prophetstown, but Ashton, which had slim hopes of taking a chunk of the Route 72 Conference crown, was upset by Forreton 84-67, and with that defeat went all chances for a share of the title.

Other area games found Newman over North Scott, 70-64, Serena defeated Paw Paw, 70-64, Polo clubbed Amboy, 84-70, and Ohio clipped Neponset, 46-45. The Byron-Franklin Center, and Oregon-Erie games were postponed due to weather conditions.

Mt. Morris, now 9-0 for the league record, and Oregon, now 4-3, stand as the only teams left in contention for the Blackhawk championship. Mt. Morris meets Amboy tonight, and Oregon next Friday evening.

The Mounders had four players in double figures, with Ken Kaufman again leading the way with 21. Randy Miller followed closely with 20, Davis with 19, and Jack Beck with 18.

Leading scorer for Prophetstown was Matthews who scored 21 points in a losing cause. Porter chipped in 18 for the Prophets.

The game was never really in doubt, as Mt. Morris jumped off to a whopping 26-12 lead at the end of the first period and left for the halftime talks ahead by a 41-31 count. The third period saw Prophetstown close the margin somewhat, and go into the fourth stanza only eight points down, but Mt. Morris pulled away with a 25 point scoring spree in the fourth.

Ashton played without the services of ball-handling whiz Randy Page, and his being ill with the flu put Ashton behind the eight-ball. Coupled with Forreton's strong full-court press, the Aces found more than their share of troubles moving the ball.

Dave Drake scored 26 points for the winners, who hit on 39 of 70 field goal attempts for a 56 per cent average. Ashton, meanwhile, hit on a still respectable but comparatively cool 45 per cent.

It was Drake's season high, and his shooting took Forreton from a two-point deficit at the end of the first quarter to a four-point advantage at halftime.

The Cardinals continued their hot hand at the shooting game with quarters of 21 and 23 points, while Ashton could pick up only 14 and 17.

With Steve Herwig moved to guard for a time in hopes of replacing Page, Ashton lost the edge in rebounding and the Cardinals took home a 46-32 advantage in that department.

Herwig finished with 23 points to lead Ashton, but Forreton countered with 19 points from Steve Faas, and 10 from Randy Sanders. Forreton now stands 3-8 in the league.

Polo avenged an early season defeat at the hands of Amboy as the Marcos dumped the visitors with Mick Paul and Gale Bratrud scoring 55 points between them.

The pair was almost impossible to stop, and Paul chalked up 12 free throws of 13 attempts to boost his scoring marks. Bratrud continued his scoring spree, hitting on 12 field goals—from all over the floor.

The game was never in doubt, as the Marcos jumped ahead to a 13-9 lead at the end of the first quarter, and stretched it to 32-26 at the half. The third period was even most of the way, 18-18, but in the fourth, the scorers pulled the stops out, and combined for 60 points in that stanza. Polo tallied 34 in the spree, and Amboy managed only 26.

High for Amboy was Jim Mason with 32 points, and Blackburn with 14 markers.

Newman improved its Illowa Conference record to 4-6, while North Scott fell to a dismal 2-8 with that loss. Al Villa led the Newman scorers with 16, but teammates Joe Salvatore, Tom Nieman and Chuck Murphy all finished in double figures.

North Scott held a slim lead at halftime, 31-26, but the Comets roared back in the third quarter with 25 points while holding the visitors to only 14. Both teams finished the contest with a 14-point fourth period.

High point man for the game was North Scott's Jim Raschy with 18, followed by teammates Mike Mohr, and Rick Eller.

For Paw Paw, it was a matter of too many fouls. Although outscoring Serena 25-22 from the field, the Bulldogs had three starters foul out, and handed the winners a golden opportunity to pull off a win from the free throw line.

And that is just what happened. Serena hit on 26 of 37 charity tosses, but Paw Paw connected on only 14 of 20. Both figure out to 70 per cent, but Serena nearly doubled Paw Paw's attempts.

The game was almost exactly even for the final three periods—Paw Paw outscored the winners by two points in that stretch—but, Serena's first period crushed Paw Paw's hopes. While scoring 20 points, Paw Paw managed only 12 in that first stanza.

Sterling heads NCIC meet

Sterling held the aces in today's early morning semi-finals round of the NCIC wrestling tournament with 10 individuals still battling for titles.

Rochelle has eight still remaining in the single elimination tourney, while host Dixon followed with seven facing semi-final matches completing the expected three-team race for the conference title.

At the end of the second round completed last evening, Sterling held a strong lead over the field with 34 points. Rochelle followed with 28, and Dixon was close behind with 22. Rock Falls had 19, Ottawa 17, Princeton 14, Kewanee 13, and La Salle-Peru 10. Streater had but seven, and Geneseo took the bottom spot with five.

Only five Dixon matmen failed to make it through the preliminaries, and the other seven put their hopes on the line early this morning.

Ben Gilbert took little time in flattening Princeton freshman Larry Mylander in Friday's opening round at 98 pounds, scoring a fall in 1:08. All Friday night 98 pound matches, including first and second round, were pins. Mel Commisso, Gilbert's next opponent, scored the quickest pin 40 seconds over Streater's Jeff Mann.

Dixon team title hopes were given a jolt when 105-pound Steve Reed met third seeded Princeton's Bob Ovellette. The latter upended Reed quite handily, 12-3, to wipe out Dixon's hopes of a champion in that class.

Dixon's Clyde Ruffin (112) and Pete Perez of Sterling continued their collision course in that weight division, as both gained easy first round wins. Perez bounced Gary Jones of Rock Falls 12-2, while Ruffin pinned L-P's Roger Funsinn in 1:59. Perez brought a shiny 26-1 overall record into the tournament—his only loss to Ruffin. Both had to survive semi-finals matches to meet in the finals.

Senior Jerry Brown met Mel Commisso of Sterling in the semi-finals of the 119-pound class. Commisso racked up a 3:28 pin in the first round, while Brown fought to a 4-2 decision win against Greg Smigel.

Ottawa's Leo Johnson bombed his first round opponent, but was beaten by Dixon's Dave Bender in the second round of the 126-pound class, 5-2. Bender met Jim Kreiger of Rochelle this morning hoping to gain the finals.

Don Mekeel blanked his La Salle-Peru opponent 7-0 to gain entree to the semi-finals against first-seeded sophomore Dan Breedlove of Kewanee in the 132-pound class. Bill Jackse of La Salle-Peru eliminated Dixon's John Nagy 14-1 in the first round at 138.

Joe Coffey won his first NCIC match of the year Friday in whipping Geneseo 145-pounder Mark Kemper 3-2 in that class's first round. First seeded Gene Cioni bounced Coffey out of the tournament in the second round, 7-3.

Rod Derksen performed to the tune of a 2:55 pin over Ottawa's John Cheli at 155, and battled Jim Gary, undefeated with a 5-0 mark in the semi-finals today.

Sterling's Jim Ryan waltzed into the tournament unbeaten, with only a tie to mar his otherwise perfect record.

He avenged that tie by dumping Dixon's Dennis Trotter 7-1 at 167 pounds in the first round.

Heavyweight Jim Witzleb, topseeded, won by forfeit in the first round, and met Sterling's Tom Erickson in this morning's semi-finals.

Sauk dominates win over Clinton

By DAVE BLACKBURN

Telegraph Correspondent

The Redmen of Sauk Valley dominated action for all but six minutes midway through the second half Friday night and upended the Clinton Huskers by a score of 75-61.

A failure by the winners to score from the free throw line gave the Huskers the chance to take the lead for the first time of the game with 13:49 remaining. Dave Espey tied the game on a three point play and it was followed by a 15 foot jump shot by Dennis Stolk giving Clinton a 43-41 lead. Five minutes later Ed Fritts broke a 50-50 tie with a free throw and the hosting Redmen went back to work chalking up 24 points in the final seven minutes. Despite the fact that Sauk missed six of their last eight free throws, the Redmen came out comfortable winners.

Both teams shot for low percentage from the field with Sauk coming up with one more than the losers but the winners made 25 one pointers to the 13 piled up by Clinton.

Sauk Valley jumped to an early 8-0 lead and the Huskers didn't get on the scoreboard until four minutes had gone by. A 12-point lead was built up by the Redmen but Clinton came within two and then fell cold. The half ended with Sauk ahead 35-29.

Sauk maintained the lead for the first seven minutes of the period, but then the Huskers took control. Clinton scoring was evened out during the second 20 minutes but the hosts were paced by Rick Hines' 14 points after a two point first half. The game ended with a series of Clinton fouls and the Redmen coasted on to the victory.

Ed Fritts was the game's high scorer with 19 and Larry Fell added 17 points. Rick Hines ended with 16 — eight of those from the charity stripe. Steve, Steve Bock had 12.

Dennis Stolk was high for the Huskers with 14 and Jim Long put in 12, mostly in the first half. Both Dave Fraizer and Dave Espey put in 10 apiece.

Sauk will meet Kishwaukee Tuesday in a conference battle, and on Wednesday Augustana challenges the Redmen. Both games are at 7:30 p.m. at Sauk Valley.
